In her debut novel, And We Are Not Saved, Jessica Treadway delivers a raw and unflinching account of grief, loss, and the power of memory. This deeply moving and thought-provoking novel will stay with you long after you finish reading it.

The novel follows the story of Eleanor, a young woman who is struggling to come to terms with the death of her mother. Eleanor's mother was a complex and difficult woman, and her death has left Eleanor with a mix of emotions, including grief, anger, and guilt. As Eleanor tries to process her mother's death, she begins to question her own life and her own choices.

And We Are Not Saved is a beautifully written and emotionally resonant novel that explores the universal themes of grief, loss, and the power of memory. Treadway's writing is spare and evocative, and she creates a vivid and haunting world that will stay with you long after you finish reading it.
