The story begins with Coyote sitting on a rock, shivering in the cold. He sees a fire burning in the distance and decides to go and get it. But when he gets to the fire, he finds that it is guarded by a giant bird. Coyote tries to trick the bird into letting him take the fire, but the bird is too smart for him.

Coyote is about to give up when he sees a mouse. He asks the mouse for help, and the mouse agrees to help him. The mouse tells Coyote to dig a hole under the bird's nest. Coyote digs the hole, and the mouse crawls into the nest and steals the fire. Coyote then takes the fire back to the people, and they are all very grateful to him.

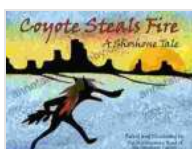

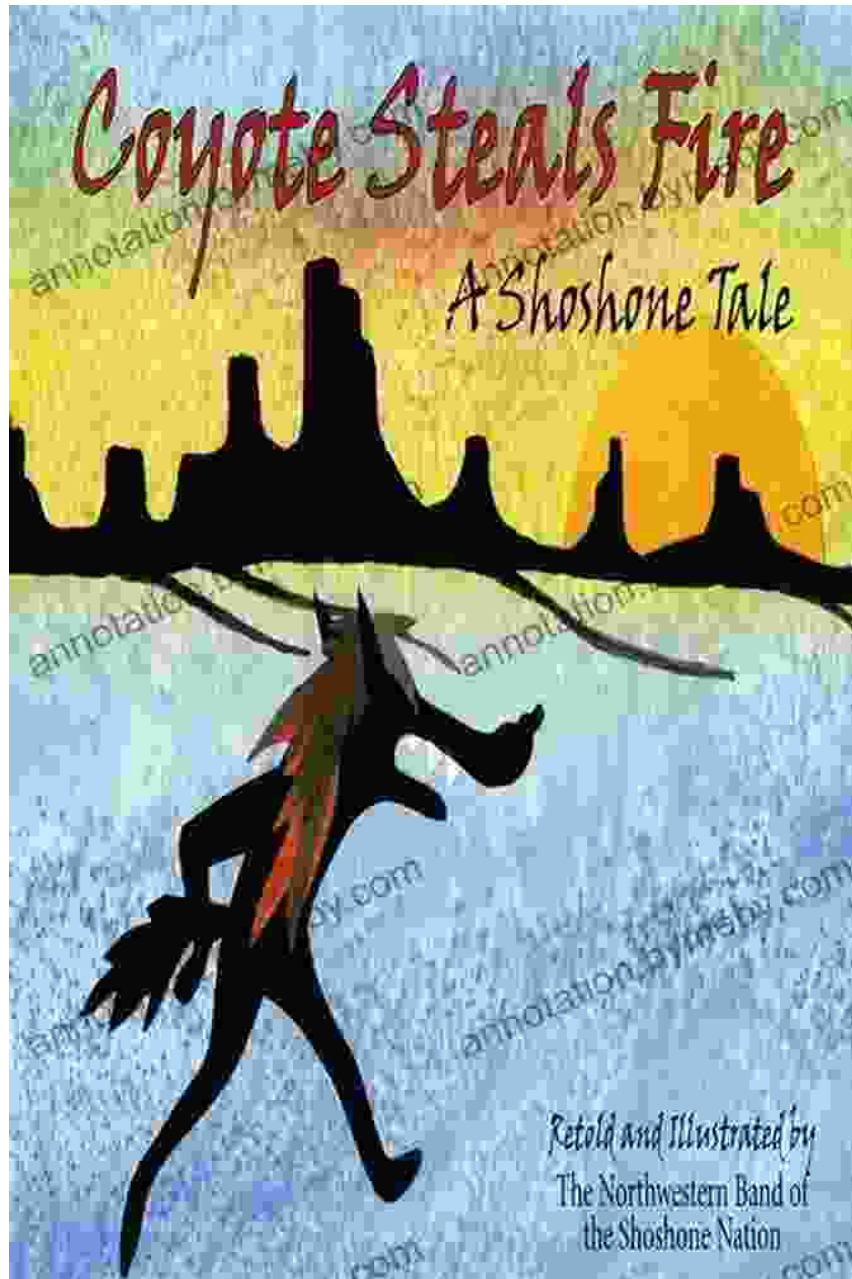

Coyote Steals Fire is a classic Native American tale that has been told for generations. This book is a beautiful retelling of the story, with vibrant illustrations that bring the story to life. The book also includes a glossary of Shoshone words and a pronunciation guide, making it a great resource for students and teachers alike.
